Castaway boredom and Join Us for...

Survivor Troy

Troy Lutheran Church

September 18th, 6-9:00 pm

FREE family dinner at 5:00 pm!

Take part in an exciting community visioning rally and become energized, encouraged, and inspired about our community's potential. Come prepared for a fun filled evening that is packed with ideas, information, and an opportunity to have a say about the future we are all creating for our community.

This Survivor themed event will make you feel like a genuine castaway battling to survive on a deserted Island. The evening will include a FREE family dinner at 5:00 pm, a "My Dreams and Wishes for Troy" children's Coloring Showcase, games, and door prizes. You'll engage in challenging activities which result in the creation of a Vision Statement that describes what we want our community to be like 10-15 years from now with a road map of how to get there.

The evening's activities will be lead by dynamic, internationally famous community development expert David Beurle. A native of Australia, Beurle has extensive experience in helping revitalize rural, agriculture communities in both the USA and Australia. If you would like more information about this event please visit www.troyidaho.net and click the Troy Horizons link.

What's New In Troy?

Getting People Connected

Troy Talk has a new image, but that's not all that's new. Thanks to a generous donation from Troy Horizons, Troy Talk will now reach every household in Troy. In reaction to local citizens' concern over the lack of information availability and disconnect between in-town and rural residents, Troy Horizons identified improving community-wide communication as the first action item to address during an Action Forum in April. The first steps in achieving this goal were to distribute the Troy Talk newsletter to all residents and to create a website for Troy. Now that both of these goals have been achieved, citizens will be working on other ways to get people connected, and also identifying new action items. Learn more about what's happening and how to become involved at the new Troy website or call 835-4088!

We're On The Web!

Did you know that Troy has a new website? Thanks to lots of know how and volunteer time from community member Bob McCullough, and financial support from Troy Horizons and the Northwest Area Foundation, we now have a new website where you can go to get important community information.
